

Hi I'm Jenny and I'm re-running to be your President of Education. This is my third elections now at York St John, and I'm determined to continue my passion for creating change for students. In my previous work as a Part-Time Officer and Sabbatical Officer, I've found it is crucial that we create a partnership that empowers you to take charge of your education. Please read my manifesto below, and make sure you vote!
My main aims for you are:

Stress Less:

I want to work with the University to promote a better understanding of student mental health, how staff can best support students, and encourage a healthy work/life balance for students whilst obtaining their degrees.

Sustainable Education:

Both the University and the Students' Union need to recognise the footprint we leave on the environment. I want to work with the University to ensure we are doing all we can in the education sector to improve sustainability.

Student Voice:

The student voice should be at the forefront of the Universities agenda. I want to forge a partnership that enables you to take charge of your education, have your say, and feed into any decisions the University make.

Lecture Capture:

With an increasingly diverse student population, and an increase in distance learners, I want to lobby the university to implement lecture recording. This will provide additional support to those who are not always able to travel to campus, and act as a great study aid to recap what was covered in class.

Inclusivity and Accessibility:

want to ensure that students of the University with additional needs receive the support they need to fully access all of the educational opportunities the University offers, and promote the services available.A

Jenny Marchant

President of Education
